

Abstract

The object of the present invention is to provide the system capable of grasping a transaction state from a commodity purchase to the settlement and reception of the commodity. In order to achieve the objective, the processing means executes a processing such as storing a billing amount based on the order reception information in the door-to-door parcel delivery information storage means by every piece of order reception information received from the receiver side terminal; storing the delivery state information received from the deliverer side terminal in the door-to-door parcel delivery information storage means by every piece of order reception information; and when receiving a transmission request from the receiver side terminal, referencing the door-to-door parcel delivery information storage means, and then transmitting the billing amount and the delivery state information to the receiver side terminal by every piece of the order reception information.

Drawings